College Supplemental Essay

I believe that at NYU, I will have a great opportunity to study economics. I like studying economics because the field can help people achieve their largest satisfaction under limited resources. I want to study economics and mathematics because I believe that mathematics can help me to better understand economics.

NYU has a strong and competitive economics department. At NYU, I can study economics from some of the most outstanding professors in the world. This experience is very valuable to me. Also, NYU has rich research resources for students studying economics. I believe that practical application in the real world is an important part of studying economics. The centers such as the C.V. Starr Center for Applied Economics and the Development Research Institute provide resources for students to study the role of economics in the real world. I think that these centers will help me to learn the relationship between economics theory and the real world, deepening my understanding of the economics knowledge I learn in class. Furthermore, I am very interested in the research opportunities provided for students. I think research is important for students studying economics, as it can help them have a better understanding about economic theories and sometimes generate better solutions for economics. The plentiful research opportunities at NYU really match my needs, and I believe this experience will be very vital to my economics study.

In turn, I hope I can contribute to studying the gap between the poor and the rich. As a goal-oriented person, I want to do independent research and join research groups about people dealing with financial issues. Presently at school, I am doing research about the shopping patterns of people with financial issues. I want to figure out the reasons why many poor people spend more than other people. By continuing my studies at NYU, I hope my efforts can help more people to pay attention to this social problem. Whether it is because of people's own shopping styles, or due to external reasons that force them to spend more money, this results in people not having the chance to save money. I hope that my research can inspire other people to think about economics from a social perspective.

In sum, I like economics and I believe NYU would offer me a comprehensive economics education. Moreover, I believe my research interests can give other people a new perspective about economics.
